TO JAIL FOR SAYING RIPPER.

Jim Sheppard, Man o'Warman, Arrested at the East River Hotel.

That the police have not yet given up searching for the man who was last seen with Carrie Brown, before the horrible butchery at the East River Hotel on the night of April 23, is shown by another reported arrest in the case.

Removals were current this morning that the Oak street police had in custody a man who said that he knew the Ripper, for he was with "Frenchy No. 1" on the night of the murder and was also with old Shakespeare at the hotel that night.

The sergeant on duty at the Oak street station this morning denied that any arrest had been made. Ward Detective Griffin confirmed his statement and added:

"I came into the station-house about 9 o'clock last night and found an old man here who said he had stopped at the East River Hotel with an old woman who he thought was 'Shakespeare'."

"When we asked him to describe the old woman he said her name was Norfolk and weighed about 160 or 170 pounds."

"Now 'Shakespeare' had gray hair, but she was a little slight built woman, and as the man couldn't tell anything more we let him go."

At the East River Hotel it was learned that the suspected friend of Frenchy was a man-o'-war named Jim Sheppard. He is about fifty-five years old, has gray hair and stubby mustache, and is about five feet seven inches in height.

He came into the hotel towards 9 o'clock and began talking about "Jack the Ripper." He said that he knew the Ripper, and described a man who answered fairly well the appearance of Amer Ben Ali, alias Frenchy, only he said that the man he knew was over 6 feet tall, while Frenchy is about 5 feet 10 or 11 inches.

Sheppard said that he met the Ripper a few nights before the murder at Mamie Harrington's, 40 Oliver street, and it is claimed that he said nothing about having stopped there with an old woman.

Sam Shino, the night barkeeper, listened to the old tar's talk for a few minutes and then quietly called a policeman, who took the old man up to the Oak street station.

Levy, Friend & House, Frenchy's lawyers, said this morning that Sheppard's apprehension only indicated that the police had not yet secured the man who was last seen with old Shakespeare before she was found a mangled corpse.

"It also shows," said Lawyer House, "that this man Shino is being kept here by the police to report any discoveries that he may make."

Eddie Fitzgerald, who it was reported this morning caused Sheppard's apprehension, has been locked up at the House of Detention since the Coroner's inquest was held.

District Attorney Nichol has decided to move Frenchy's trial early in June. Assistant District Attorney Williams says that the people have considerable additional evidence that has not yet been disclosed.

M. de Balzac, a representative of the Vicomte d'Albanc, the French Consul-General, had a long interview with Frenchy at the Tombs yesterday. If the Consul is satisfied that Frenchy is a French subject he will send him to France.

BLAINE'S BRAIN ALL RIGHT.

His Physical Condition is Steadily Improving, Says His Daughter.

Secretary Blaine's condition to-day shows signs of continued improvement, but Mrs. Damrosch, his daughter, said to an Evening World reporter that the question of a trip to Bar Harbor was still in an unsettled state.

Referring to a report from Washington respecting upon her father's mental condition, Mrs. Damrosch smiled and said:

"Dear me how absurd! It is all absolutely untrue. It is not the first time, you must remember, that articles of similar character have been published. If my father would undertake to try every publication containing such reflections as these he surely would become insane."

ONE KILLED, ONE CRAZED.

Two Firemen Horribly Scalded by Steam from a Bursting Boiler.

COLUMBIA, O., May 22.—A large new tubular boiler, in the Columbus Baggy Company's building, exploded this morning, blowing out one of its heads.

Fortunately, the heavy piece struck no one, and flying across the boiler-room, burst into a wall.

Thomas Moulton, 77, fireman, who was standing in front of the boiler, was enveloped in steam and lived only twenty minutes.

Another fireman was scalded by scalding steam, and tearing off his clothes ran up a crowded thoroughfare stark naked. Though badly burned, he will recover.

The dead man was forty-nine years old, colored and married.

Telegraphers' Dinner-Night's Festival.

SHOCKED BY MR. SIBLEY.

The Standard Oil Man Offends His Bashful Neighbors.

"That eminently aristocratic neighborhood near Sherman square, within the confines of which live Mayor Grant, Daniel E. Lamont, Police Commissioner John McLaughlin and Ulysses S. Grant, Jr., is deeply stirred up this morning over the charge made against one of their wealthiest and most respected neighbors, Mr. Sibley."

Mr. Sibley lives in No. 231, one of the best of the row of pretentious-looking houses on West Twenty-ninth street. It is a magnificent mansion of granite architecture, both front and rear, but some people's attention has been attracted to the handsome dwelling by more than its architectural beauty.

Marshall E. Curry, a real estate dealer, of 232 and 234 West Twenty-ninth street, from whose rear windows a full view of the Sibley residence may be had, looked out of their respective windows one morning and saw, they say, Mr. Sibley standing near his open window going through certain motions with his hands.

Now, neither Mr. Curry nor Mr. Shea perceived anything wrong in that innocent manual exercise, but their almost maidenly audacity was shocked at the appearance of Mr. Sibley.

He was taking his athletic exercise in his dress robe—dress robe is the word, Mr. Curry says, because there wasn't more than a dream of it.

Mr. Curry said something in a whisper to Neighbor Shea and then with an abashed look on his face hurried away.

Imagine, then, what must have been the shock to the tender sensibilities of Neighbors Curry and Shea, when next morning they looked out of their windows again—not to pry or peep or out of curiosity—but just to see if Mr. Sibley would make his appearance again in his dress gown.

By all that is immaculate and pure, or vice versa, Mr. Sibley was there again. And—shocking! he wasn't in his usual dress, as much as a shade of a dream. So Neighbors Shea and Curry say.

They were indignant—nay more, they determined that Mr. Sibley should not appear again before their modest gaze in that unconventional manner.

So straightaway they went to the Harlem Police Court and had a summons made out for the offending Mr. Sibley to appear and explain himself.

Mr. Sibley, who is a very pleasant gentleman, correct in manners, dress and speech, and to make answer on this day before the Hon. Judge John B. Brewer.

The Currys and Sheas, as becomes their modest state, live very quiet, and are not much known in the neighborhood. Mr. Sibley's life is a leading stockholder of Standard Oil Trust and other oil-gated securities.

He lives in a quiet, comfortable, and elegant cottage and is surrounded by a large and well-kept garden. He is a very pleasant gentleman, correct in manners, dress and speech, and to make answer on this day before the Hon. Judge John B. Brewer.

Mr. Sibley does not look like a man who would be guilty of such a thing. He is a very pleasant gentleman, correct in manners, dress and speech, and to make answer on this day before the Hon. Judge John B. Brewer.

CHILDREN IN A BLAZING HOUSE.

Their Panic-Stricken Mother Repulsed the Rescuers.

Nine people were caught in a blazing building on the outskirts of Brooklyn this morning and narrowly escaped death. They were all rescued, but the mother of the children who were in the house was repulsed by the rescuers.

The building where the fire occurred is a frame structure at 181 Prospect place, adjoining the old Franklin avenue horse-car station. It is owned and occupied by William Morgan, with his wife and five children, whose ages range from twelve years down to a seven-month-old baby.

Robert Hildicks and William Shaw also board with the Morgans, and it is due to their energy that the family were saved. Morgan is employed as an engineer in the Cranford & Valentine Asphalt Paving Works.

BISHOP BROOKS'S VICTORY.

Standing Committee of New York Diocese Approves His Consecration.

It is believed that the action of the Standing Committee of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, in giving its assent to the consecration of Philip Brooks as Bishop of Massachusetts, will turn the tide in favor of Bishop Brooks's election.

There are yet about seventy dioceses to be heard from, but yesterday was a day of victory for Dr. Brooks.

New York's Standing Committee deliberated on the matter more than three hours, but finally gave its assent by a vote of 6 to 2. Messrs. Stephen P. N. M. George Macaulay Miller, David Clarkson and S. Nicholson Kane, the four lay members of the Committee voted yes, as did Rev. Drs. Seabury and Butler; Rev. Drs. Dix and Hickey voted in the negative, according to report.

Messrs. Nash and Clark said: "We examined a memorial signed by 125 of the lay Episcopians of Massachusetts, and we are glad to see that the majority of the diocese are in favor of Dr. Brooks, and we do not go behind this testimonial from those who are so situated that they can better determine Dr. Brooks's fitness for the Bishopric than we can at this distance."

The Standing Committee of the Diocese of New York, Providence, R. I.; Raleigh, N. C.; Philadelphia, Kansas City, Cincinnati, Omaha and Nashville, have given their consent to the consecration of Dr. Brooks.

Those of Iowa, Milwaukee and Newark have withheld their consent, and the Diocese of Buffalo has the matter on the table. The Long Island Diocese Convention ignored the subject, which is equal to a negative vote.

But, even if a majority of the dioceses should give their assent to standing committee of the Diocese Council, the House of Bishops still has the deciding power, and Dr. Brooks's consecration will meet with strong opposition from many of the Bishops, notably Messrs. Wilber, of Chicago, and Lillie, of St. Louis.

The members of Dr. Brooks seem to be encouraged by several members of the clergy and laymen who must vote on the question of consecrating Brooks. The alleged opposition to the consecration of Brooks is a negative vote.

But, even if a majority of the dioceses should give their assent to standing committee of the Diocese Council, the House of Bishops still has the deciding power, and Dr. Brooks's consecration will meet with strong opposition from many of the Bishops, notably Messrs.
